After reviewing the pages on essay structure in the OWL, I made a plan for my essay using the “traditional” essay structure with an introduction, body paragraphs with topic sentences related to my thesis, and a conclusion. The only thing that was different for me was that I had a lot more than three body paragraphs for my body. Since my essay has to be 4 to 6 pages in length, I needed to make a plan for more topic sentences. Still, the traditional structure still works very well. I just expanded on the number of body paragraphs, which everyone has to do sometimes.

Here, I modeled the sample in the OWL to help me make a good plan and to help me visualize that plan as I draft my essay.
